Dear Sir/Madame:

A requirement for the course in WS101- Web Systems and Technologies involves the creation of websites and web applications. It includes front-end development (the user interface and interactions). In this project, the students are expected to design and develop a complete working website for a certain company small or medium-sized business, an enterprise, or an academic institution.

An integral part of the project is data gathering through interviews, surveys, and document analysis. This project is expected to serve as a venue and opportunity for the students to be able to design and develop solutions appropriate to their chosen field of study similar to the industry exercise on web systems design and development.

The following students are heading a team that has expressed their intention to consider your prestigious institution or department for their study:
